

“SOUL INSURANCE”

By Terry Stanley

Synopsis

We all need insurance; for our home, car, and life. However, the Harris' soon realize they are missing the most important insurance of all...insurance to guarantee their soul will go to heaven when they die. That insurance is Jesus Christ.

Scripture

John 17:3

Ministry Lesson

Although our physical body will die someday, our soul and spirit will live forever. The only way to have eternal life is the know (and accept) Jesus Christ.

Ministry Focus

Salvation

Genre: Comedy

Cast:

Blanche (wife)

Earl (husband)

Mr. Johnson (salesman)

Note: Earl and Blanche are country farmers and speak with a heavy Southern accent)

Costumes

Mr. Johnson is dressed in suit.

Earl dressed in overalls and suspenders

Blanche dressed in a old-fashion house dress

(

Props

Table and chair

Newspaper

Briefcase

Bible

Business card

Broom

Apron

Time: 7 mins.

"SOUL INSURANCE"

INT. FAMILY ROOM

EARL IS SEATED IN A CHAIR RELAXING AND READING A NEWSPAPER.
BLANCHE IS SCURRYING AROUND TRYING TO TIDY UP THE ROOM.
SHE BRUSHES THE NEWSPAPER EARL IS READING.

EARL

(Irritated)

What in the world are you doing?

BLANCHE

I don't want him to see this mess.

EARL

Him who?

BLANCHE

Mr. Johnson.

EARL

Who in the world is Mr. Johnson?

BLANCHE

You know, the insurance salesman I met on the bus when we went into the city.

EARL

(folds up newspaper) Here we go again!
Blanche, you keep falling for these con artists. There are certain people you just can't trust: politicians, lawyers, and salesmen. Especially salesmen that ride the bus.

BLANCHE

(easy touch)

...but he looked so honest.

EARL

That's all part of the con, sweetie pie.

SOUND EFFECT: DOOR BELL OR HARD KNOCK

BLANCHE

(takes off apron) He's here. Honey, tidy up your newspaper.

EARL MURMURS HIS DISSATISFACTION OF HAVING HIS PEACEFUL EVENING INTERRUPTED. HE MAKES A WEAK ATTEMPT TO TIDY UP THE SCATTERED NEWSPAPER, THEN HE SETTLES BACK TO FINISH READING. BLANCHE OPENS THE DOOR. MR. JOHNSON ENTERS.

BLANCHE

Hello, glad you could make it.

MR. JOHNSON

Good evening.

BLANCHE

Please come in, and have a seat. Earl,
Mr. Johnson is here. (Earl remains buried under the newspaper). EARL!
Meet Mr. Johnson.

EARL

(Annoyed)

(Sternly shakes hand) Hi, Mr. Johnson... nice meeting you...no thank you...we don't want it...have a nice ride home...ON THE BUS [or subway]!

BLANCHE

Earl!

MR. JOHNSON

Oh that's alright Mrs. Harris. I'm not going to take up much of your time.

MR. JOHNSON LEANS OVER TO OPEN HIS BRIEFCASE TO SEARCH FOR PAPERS. IN THE MEANTIME, EARL AND BLANCHE ARE SILENTLY ARGUING WITH EACH OTHER. WHEN MR. JOHNSON RISES BACK UP, THEY QUICKLY RETURN TO NORMAL.

MR. JOHNSON

Here it is. I just want to leave you with some information.

BLANCHE FLIPS THROUGH PAGES OF THE POLICY.

EARL

(Leans back in chair) So, Mr. Johnson, exactly what kind of insurance do you sell? I mean, we already have life truck, and farm insurance.

MR. JOHNSON

Those are good to have, but that's not all the insurance you need.

BLANCHE

(Worried)

Oh my goodness, are we at risk?

MR. JOHNSON

Unfortunately, most people are but don't realize it. Here's my card. (hands out business card)

BLANCHE

(reading) The Eternity Insurance Company. (hands card to Earl)

EARL

(reading) Mr. Peter Johnson, Soul Insurance Agent. What in the world is soul insurance?

MR. JOHNSON

Insurance for your soul.

BLANCHE

(Empty-headed)

Insurance for my soul??? I never would have thought of that.

MR. JOHNSON

You have life insurance coverage for your loved ones, but what about Death Insurance? If you should die today what would happen to your soul?

EARL

Wait a minute buster! What company can guarantee my soul? Is your company listed with the Better Business Bureau?

MR. JOHNSON

Frankly, this company is better than the Better Business Bureau. It's been in existence since the beginning of time and is still managed by the original owner.

BLANCHE

(Slow-witted)

Oh my, he must be ready to retire.

EARL

Just hold your mule for a moment....

- End of Preview -

Do you want to know how this script ends?
There's a strong ministry message at the end.

Return to the selection list and click the "Buy" button.
